Description

A small Georgian mahogany sideboard, the well figured top with reeded edge above a single long drawer, small drawers either side of the moulded centre arch. The table stands on turned fluted legs, the dovetailed drawers are lined in cedar wood and retain their original turned wooden knobs. Wonderful colour and patina and made from the very best timber, the sheer quality of this table suggests that it is most probably by Gillows of Lancaster although it is not stamped. A useful piece of furniture that could also be used as a dressing or writing table . English Circa 1820.
