Description

As part of our Japanese works of art collection we are delighted to offer this most charming late Meiji (1868-1912) Taisho period (1912-1926), ceramic study of Mandarin ducks from the studio of the highly regarded imperial artist Miyagawa Makuzu Kozan (1842-1916) on this occasion likely to be Kozan II (1859-1940). The highly skilled artist has crafted a captivating study of a pair of Mandarin ducks with the male presiding over the female who is resting upon a rocky outcrop. The birds incredibly well painted in vibrant colours in such a lifelike detail then highly fired in the kiln, the underside stamped with the oval Kozan seal. A rare and most enchanting okimono from one of the leading Imperial studios of the period, these birds would grace any serious Japanese ceramics collection. Literature: The oval impressed seal is referenced in the index of signatures page 237 in the Sir Nasser D Khalili Collections Ceramics I, as being used after 1910 and into the 1920's period. Provenance: Private USA Collection. Condition report: Fine condition throughout. Approximate Sizes: Depth: 4 1/4" 11 cm Height: 4 3/4" 12 cm Length: 6 7/8" 17 cm Free worldwide deli...
