Description

Here is an uber-stylish and quite unusual Art Deco floor lamp in chrome, with a period frosted glass shade and complimenting arsenic green corded flex. Dating to the 1920's / 30's, the lamp stands 147cm tall, and has three adjustable elements allowing the lamp head to be raised up and down the column, to be tilted to the appropriate angle, and to be moved along the arm bracket to find and illuminate the perfect spot. Its worth noting that it is the elements that move rather than the column retracting, so the lamp will always stand at 147cm. The lamp is 36cm across the lamp head and arm, and the base is 25cm in diameter. The lamp has been fully rewired by antique lighting specialists 'Agapanthus Interiors' in Stockport, and has a 290cm corded flex coming from the back of the cross arm. I have added the frosted glass shade which comes free of charge, and is a period choice, but this of course you might opt to replace it, if the style isn't to your taste. The chrome is bright and shiny, but does have the gentle surface wear to be expected of a piece of this age, but as I hope the photographs show, it really displays beautifully. Please don't hesitate to get in touch if...
