Description

A fine set of eight Hepplewhite style dining chairs, crafted in richly figured mahogany and displaying the elegant neoclassical lines associated with the late 18th century Hepplewhite tradition. We have various dining tables to match, please get in touch if you are looking for a set. The set comprises two armchairs and six side chairs, all sharing the same refined design and proportions. Bought from a private house sale in London's Hampstead. Each chair features a beautifully shaped shield back, a hallmark of the Hepplewhite style, with a delicately pierced splat incorporating vertical spindles and a central carved rosette motif. The graceful flowing lines of the back emphasise the lightness and elegance characteristic of Hepplewhite furniture design. The chairs stand on slender tapering square legs, reinforcing the refined neoclassical aesthetic. The seats are generously upholstered in a warm-toned fabric and finished with decorative brass studwork along the edges, adding both comfort and visual interest. The armchairs feature gently curved arms which complement the elegant lines of the back. Both stylish and practical, this attractive set of Hepplewhite style dining chairs would...
