Description

A handsome 18th-century bleached oak chest on chest, dating to around 1770. Constructed in two sections for ease of transport and featuring a classic two short over six long drawer configuration. The drawers retain their original brass locks, and are finished with fine cockbeaded fronts. The upper section is crowned with a dentil moulded cornice. The oak has been bleached to a soft, natural raw finish, highlighting the attractive grain throughout and giving the chest a light, contemporary feel while retaining its period character. Presented in good overall condition, this chest offers generous storage and would work beautifully in both traditional and modern interiors.
