Description

Elegant 1950s Double Strand Cultured Pearl Necklace with Sapphire and 14ct Gold Clasp This beautiful vintage pearl necklace dates to the 1950s and is composed of two graceful strands of cultured saltwater pearls. The pearls display a soft cream tone enhanced by delicate pink and green overtones, giving them a lovely depth of colour and lustre. They are beautifully matched and graduate gently in size from approximately 5mm to 9.4mm. Completing the necklace is an elegant 14 carat gold clasp set with two pearls and seven rich midnight blue sapphires arranged in a graceful swirling design. The clasp forms a decorative focal point while remaining refined and understated. The pearls have recently been professionally restrung and individually hand knotted, ensuring the necklace is both secure and ready to wear. This necklace is accompanied by an AnchorCert gem laboratory certificate confirming the pearls as cultured saltwater pearls and the sapphires as natural. A timeless and highly wearable vintage pearl necklace that sits beautifully at the neckline.
