Description

A superb early Victorian silver christening mug with clear hallmarks for London 1869 and makers mark for William Evans. This charming example has elegant proportions, and sumptuous decoration. The rims are beaded, as is part of the scrolled handle. The body is bright cut with a central vacant shield encircled with a double festoon design, repeated around the body above and below the beading. Either side of the shield, a bright cut garland loops round to meet at the handle. The top of the handle has a delightful detail with an indent for the thumb between the top and lower beads. There is a light gilt finish inside and the mug comes with its original silk and velvet lined box, with inscription for retained Mappin & Webb. This a superb antique with a good early date, in excellent condition.
