Description

A fine quality antique mahogany longcase grandfather clock, dating to circa 1920 and beautifully crafted in the traditional English style. The elegant mahogany case is enhanced with decorative inlay, including a central oval panel featuring floral motifs, adding visual interest and refinement. The hood is of classic arched form, flanked by turned columns with gilt capitals, and surmounted by a brass eagle finial, giving the clock strong presence and architectural appeal. The dial features a striking brass face with silvered chapter ring, Roman numerals, and finely pierced hands, typical of quality early 20th century longcase clocks. The trunk door opens to reveal a brass pendulum, housed within a well-proportioned case that stands tall yet remains elegant in profile. A piece, ideal as a statement antique clock for hallway, living room, or period interior, combining functionality with classic design. Dimensions: Height 229cm, Width 50cm, Depth 26cm Circa 1920.
