Description

A magnificent pair of 19th-century cast iron urns, epitomizing the Neoclassical elegance of the Victorian garden. Each urn features a classic campana-style body, adorned with a deep gadrooned rim and a textured frieze of raised foliate and floral swags. The vessels are supported by fluted stems and anchored by substantial square plinth bases, ensuring stability and a sense of architectural permanence. Boasting a rich, naturally weathered rust patina, these urns offer a wonderful texture that only comes with over a century of exposure. They serve as timeless, dignified focal points for any grand entryway or terrace.
