Description

A superb antique French gilt bronze (ormolu) mounted centre table, dating to circa 1900 and crafted in the manner of François Linke, one of the most celebrated Parisian cabinet makers of the Belle Époque. This elegant round centre table features a finely constructed segmented veneered top, beautifully radiating from the centre and bordered by a gilt bronze gallery. The frieze is richly adorned with ormolu mounts, including swags, garlands, and finely cast classical figures, all of exceptional detail and quality. Raised on slender tapering legs with applied gilt bronze mounts, this piece embodies the sophistication and craftsmanship associated with high-quality French antique furniture. A striking and decorative antique centre table, ideal for a hallway, salon, or statement interior, perfectly suited to both traditional and contemporary spaces.
