Description

A lovely pair of rural landscapes by J.C. Gray, both oils on canvas. One shows cattle grazing in an open field, the other a team of horses pulling a hay cart beside the water. Gray's gentle palette and eye for everyday countryside life give both paintings a warm, nostalgic charm. Each is set in an ornate gilt frame that enhances the scenes beautifully. Together they form a harmonious pair, ideal for adding character and atmosphere to any wall. Canvas measures 41.5cm x 26cm John Charles Gray (d. 1958) was a Dundee artist known for his charming rural and local landscape scenes. Born without hands, he painted using his mouth and feet, astonishing teachers with his natural talent from an early age. He lived for many years in Downfield, where he became a well-loved figure, remembered for both his artwork and his habit of singing as he worked. His paintings often depict the countryside around Dundee and now serve as a nostalgic record of the area.
