Description

Antique 20th century barley twist dresser in golden oak, a very rare and fine-quality example. This beautifully crafted piece features three open shelves in the upper section, supported by decorative barley twist columns, and two small blind door cupboards, one on each side, each with two fixed shelves inside. The centre has two drawers and there is an open shelf at the base. The dresser stands on elegant barley twist supports and showcases gorgeous grain and colour. It retains its original brass handles and is very solidly constructed, reflecting the high level of craftsmanship of the period. This is a piece that truly has to be seen in person to be fully appreciated. In excellent condition, this dresser comes apart into two sections for ease of transport and would make a perfect addition to any home. Its rare design, quality materials, and solid construction make it both a functional and collectible piece.
