Description

Very unusual late Regency rosewood veneered centre table of octagonal form. This table has a narrow cross banded freize with the most unusual design base. Large turned and carved central column with 4 small thin turned and carved supports to the corners with platform base and original turned and carved bun feet with inset castors. The table is of very good quality, even the inside part of the freize is veneered in rosewood. The top is a lovely colour having mellowed beautifully over the years. I am msure this must be by someone. The table is basically in good condition but does require some veneer restorations. Priced to sell in as found condition, a quote for restoration can be given if required. SIZE; 42" square by 27" high CIRCA; 1810 - 1830
