Description

A substantial and highly attractive French farmhouse table in solid cherrywood, dating to circa 1880. Of generous proportions, this piece combines rustic charm with practical functionality, making it ideal as a kitchen or dining table. The well-figured cherrywood top is formed from wide planks, displaying a warm honeyed tone and beautiful natural grain, enhanced by years of use and careful maintenance. Raised on sturdy square tapering legs, the table offers excellent stability and a clean, understated silhouette typical of provincial French furniture. A particularly desirable feature is the original pull-out bread slide, neatly concealed beneath the top and providing additional surface space when required. The table comfortably accommodates larger gatherings, making it perfect for family dining or entertaining. Its simple yet elegant design allows it to sit effortlessly within both traditional farmhouse interiors and more contemporary settings seeking a rustic focal point. Knee Height 64cm circa 1880
