Description

A well-proportioned pair of George IV mahogany armchairs, the frames of rich, warm tone with a pleasing, well-figured grain. Each chair features a distinctive curved top rail carved with stylised leaf motifs at the terminals, above a shaped back with a horizontal mid-rail. The open arms are elegantly scrolled, flowing into downsweped supports that terminate neatly at the seat rail, demonstrating refined craftsmanship and balanced design. The seats are generously proportioned and traditionally upholstered in a deep red fabric, finished with a simple decorative trim that complements the warmth of the mahogany. The front legs are turned and fluted, tapering neatly to the feet, while the rear legs are sabre-shaped, contributing to the overall lightness and grace typical of the period.
