Description

A rare and beautifully preserved pair of 18th-century Italian walnut side or hall chairs, likely originating from Genoa. Each chair features a shaped, open carved back with the detail of a vase-shaped fretwork vertical splat. The generous seat rests on four elegant cabriole legs, each enriched with delicately carved reeding running from top to foot, adding refinement without excess. What truly sets this pair apart is their unpretentious charm: a sturdy, confident silhouette softened by graceful lines and thoughtful detailing. They carry the quiet elegance of Italian design at its best. Upholstery: In good, usable condition with only a couple of light marks to the fabric. Depending on placement or intended use, reupholstery would be an easy update if desired. Origin: Italy, likely Genoa.
