Description

A fine Georgian figured mahogany circular tilt top table raised on a well proportioned turned pedestal with elegant tripod cabriole legs. The top displays a rich warm tone with attractive figuring showing the natural character and depth that only period mahogany develops over time. The tilt top mechanism allowed the table to be stored upright when not in use, a practical feature in Georgian homes where space and flexibility were valued. These tables were commonly used as supper or occasional tables, easily brought out for dining, tea or entertaining, then neatly set aside. The proportions are particularly pleasing, with a sturdy yet refined base and a generously sized top, making it highly versatile for modern interiors as a centre, lamp or occasional table. Condition Report: Good antique condition with age related wear. The top shows surface marks consistent with use and an aged related patina. The base is solid and stable with expected wear. Dimensions: Height: 71 cm (27.95 in) Width: 82 cm (32.28 in) Depth: 81 cm (31.89 in) Date: 1780 Origin: English
