Description

A beautifully carved late-Qing Chinese writing desk, crafted in Huan wood and dating to around 145 years old. This elegant five-drawer example originates from Lin Hai City in the south of China and showcases the refined craftsmanship of the period. The drawer fronts are richly carved with nature-inspired scenes, each panel displaying crisp detail and a warm, time-softened patina. The central apron features an intricate openwork geometric design. The wood has developed a deep, mellow tone through age and use. Original metal ring pulls remain in place, each with a pleasingly worn surface that speaks to the desk's long life. A characterful and authentic piece of Chinese furniture, practical in scale, rich in detail, and full of historic charm.
