Description

Large 19th Century French mahogany armoire, featuring moulded cornice and serpentine block feet. The piece would have originally been shelved, however these have been removed and replaced with a hanging rail to make this a practical wardrobe. The shelf brackets remain, and shelves could be easily reinstated. There is currently a functional set of drawers fitted to a moveable shelf sitting on the existing shelf brackets. The front of the drawers are original, and while the casing and shelf are modern additions they are in-keeping with the piece. Other later alterations include; the base and the top of the armoire. The cornice is removable for ease of transport or lower ceiling heights.
