Description

This is an antique washstand. An English, pine and faux marble gallery back dressing table, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910. A charming and practical stand, offering excellent colour, craftsmanship and traditional bedroom or dressing room appeal. Ideal for a bedroom, dressing room or country house interior. Crafted from quality pine stocks with fine figuring. Warm biscuit hues dance across the quality craftsmanship. Superb faux marble effect applied to cool, tactile slate. Marble finish skilfully presents red and white tones with black veining. Elegant swan neck pediment rising above the gallery top. Generous plinth surface, with a height of 73.5cm (29") for comfortable use. Durable and practical surface for daily dressing or display. Gallery back hosts a pair of candle brackets beneath the upper frieze. Pair of field panel doors to the fascia. Doors dressed with brass drop handles for ease of access. Standing upon a quartet of chamfered square section legs. Raised upon brass castors for smooth movement. This is a delightful antique Edwardian washstand, combining decorative faux marble surfaces with practical storage. Sturdy and well balanced construction throughout, t...
