Description

For sale, a Regency period cupping set by John Millikin of 301 The Strand, London. The set is comprised of a purple silk velvet lined mahogany case with hook and eye fixings to the front, lock plate and a brass cartouche to the centre of the hinged lid. The fitted interior is provided with a nest of six flint glass cups to the rear section, with folded rims for ease of attaching to the skin, complete with their original chamois leather protective sleeves. A brass spirit lamp with bulbous end for filling with spirit and a pull off lid at the wick end to the front left. The fitted centre hole is provided with a green glass lidded bottle for storing additional spirit although this is undoubtedly a later replacement. To the right corner is a two-tiered section with the upper part dedicated to a brass twelve blade scarificator engraved to the side with the mark, "Millikin Patent" under a crown motif and the address of "301 Strand, London". The lower section contains a simple mahogany case with leather hinge, a hook and eye closure and a section of ribbon to allow for ease of removal. Unusually, the case still retains its three replacement rollers for the scarificator...
