Description

This utterly delightful, very special piece was sourced from a large family house in Wales and would have been used to transport silver when the family was moving between Wales and their London residence. Internally the top section retains the original (removable) tray, used to house small silver pieces, with the large pieces such as candelabra stored beneath. The carry handles on each side are original. It has been brought bang up to date and exquisitely decorated on all sides with great attention to detail in the style of a Georgian manor house, so in addition to providing fantastic storage it can be positioned anywhere in the room. A truly unique piece of furniture.
