Description

Here's a large antique pine wardrobe, dating from around 1920, in nice clean condition and very tidy overall. It features panelled sides and single panelled doors, with attractive reeded detailing running down the front edges on either side of the doors. The wardrobe stands on its original oak feet, adding to its character. There is a small area at the top where filler has been used historically, but this can be refinished so it blends in well — it will appear similar to a natural knot in the wood. Inside, the wardrobe offers a generous internal depth of 20.5", making it ideal for hanging coats and bulkier garments. There is evidence of a previous shelf, so a shelf with a hanging rail beneath could be fitted if preferred, or a rail can simply be installed at the top. This wardrobe fully dismantles for delivery, making it much easier to move and assemble. Delivery and assembly can be arranged if required — please let us have your postcode for a quote.
