Description

A handsome late 19th-century Continental mahogany bookcase, dating to circa 1880, combining elegant proportions with refined decorative detail. Constructed in richly figured mahogany, the cabinet displays a warm, deep tone with attractive grain throughout, enhanced by a well-developed antique patina. The upper section features a pair of glazed doors, opening to reveal adjustable shelving, ideal for books or display. The doors are beautifully adorned with intricate carved foliate detailing to the upper panels, adding a touch of craftsmanship and visual interest. The lower sections are panelled in solid mahogany, providing a pleasing contrast to the glazed upper portion. A subtle beaded moulding runs vertically between the doors, further enhancing its classical design. Raised on small turned feet and topped with a moulded cornice, the piece has a balanced and timeless presence suitable for both traditional and modern interiors. Good antique condition consistent with age and use. Minor surface marks and wear commensurate with age. Structurally sound and ready for use. A versatile and elegant antique bookcase, perfect for a study, library, or living space.
