Description

A beautifully crafted 19th century oak hall bench, combining traditional craftsmanship with practical functionality. Constructed from solid oak, the bench displays a rich, warm tone with a deep, naturally aged patina, developed over time. The surface shows subtle variations in colour and grain, enhancing its authentic antique character and charm. The backrest is particularly striking, featuring hand-carved decorative scrollwork, adding elegance and visual interest while reflecting the craftsmanship of the period. The vertical panel construction further enhances its classic architectural feel. The shaped armrests are gently curved and well-proportioned, offering both comfort and refinement, with softly worn edges that speak to its history and use. Beneath the seat lies a practical lift-up storage compartment, fitted with a traditional metal hinge/iron fitting, allowing easy access. Ideal for storing shoes, blankets, or everyday items, making it both decorative and highly functional. The bench is fitted with a well-proportioned seat cushion, neatly tailored to the frame and sitting comfortably within the seat. The fabric complements the warmth of the oak, adding softne...
