Description

This is an antique tea ceremony gong. An Oriental, carved mahogany stand with brass bell, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910. A beautifully decorative and sonorous piece, combining intricate carving with a bright, resonant tone. A charming Oriental gong with striking visual and aural appeal. Displays a desirable aged patina throughout. Profusely carved mahogany stand with pierced fretwork detail. Stand finished in deep russet hues with appealing grain interest. Pleasingly hand carved and accentuated with gilt detail. Substantial brass bell suspended within the frame. Bell adorned with a dragon motif in cast relief. Tactile striker with waxed leather shaft. Finished with an amber cut glass handle accent. Striker rests neatly upon a pair of brass supports atop the frame. Thoughtfully arranged for ease of use and display. Produces a prominent metallic tone when struck. Ideal for ceremonial use or decorative display. Adds Oriental character to the interior setting. This is a fascinating antique tea ceremony gong, with an eye-catching appearance and usefully prominent tone. Solid joints and construction, delivered ready for the home.
