Description

Here we have an amazing, very large antique pine wardrobe of Danish origin — a truly impressive and unusual piece, dating from around 1920. Each door is four-panelled, and the front is framed by beautiful vertical columns running down either side. One particularly distinctive feature is the subtly tapered front, where the wardrobe projects slightly more in the centre than at the sides — a rare and eye-catching design detail. The sides are also panelled, and it has a lovely shaped cornice at the top. Standing at 92" tall, it's an exceptionally tall wardrobe, so ceiling height should be carefully checked — you'll need a little extra clearance to allow for assembly. Inside, it is currently empty, giving you full flexibility. Shelving or hanging rails can be fitted to suit your needs. Given the generous height, you could incorporate a shelf (or shelves) above a hanging rail to make the most of the space. There is evidence of previous shelving, so this can easily be reinstated if desired. The internal depth varies slightly due to the shaped front — it measures 21" in the centre and 18.5" at the sides, which is still perfectly suitable for hanging coats and bulkier garments...
