Description

A fine antique disc-playing music box, complete with 11 interchangeable metal discs and in full working order. This mechanical music box operates in the manner of a Polyphon or Symphonion, producing a clear and charming sound through its traditional clockwork mechanism. Housed in a well-figured wooden case, the lid opens to reveal the movement and turntable, while the interior features a decorative print panel, adding to its visual appeal. The music box is hand-wound and plays a selection of tunes via the included discs, making it both a functional and highly collectible piece. Disc music boxes of this type are increasingly sought after by collectors of antique musical instruments and mechanical antiques, offering both historical interest and decorative charm. A wonderful addition to any collection, interior setting, or as a statement conversation piece. Dimensions: Height 19cm x Width 40cm x Depth 36cm
