Description

A charming example of a Victorian bronze sculpture of a joyful male musician seated on a tree stump, playing a Hurdy Gurdy, with a small dog nestled at his feet. Cloaked and hatted, his expressive face and relaxed posture present a moment of cheerful performance, beautifully captured in bronze. The craftsmanship is exceptional, with intricate detailing throughout from the folds of his cloak to the delicate features of the dog. The piece is mounted on a wooden plinth and remains in excellent condition. The Hurdy Gurdy, a mechanical violin played by turning a handle while pressing keys. Super quality and condition measuring 24 x 16.5 and stands 39cm high. ?Please contact me regarding delivery.
