Description

A beautifully crafted and uniquely decorated Islamic inlaid, table showcasing exceptional craftsmanship and timeless geometric design. This exceptional 19th-century Islamic hexagonal side table is a fine example of traditional Moorish craftsmanship. Expertly and richly decorated, the piece features intricate geometric inlay and flowing arabesque motifs, executed in a combination of bone, mother of pearl, and abalone shell. The precision and symmetry of the design reflect the classical principles of Islamic art, where geometry and pattern take precedence. The table is raised on six architectural legs, each incorporating columned supports and detailed panel work, giving the piece both elegance and structural presence. A small cupboard compartment is integrated into the design, making it both decorative and functional. The hexagonal form enhances its visual balance and makes it a striking standalone accent piece, suitable for both traditional and contemporary interiors. A highly decorative and collectible piece, ideal for interior display or as part of an Islamic or Middle Eastern art collection. Period: Early 19th Century Condition Dimensions
