Description

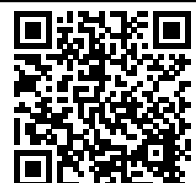

An antique Victorian brass oil lamp with cranberry glass font, raised on a finely cast Corinthian column with fluted stem and stepped square base. A well proportioned and decorative example combining classical design with quality materials. The lamp retains its original cranberry glass reservoir with delicate enamel floral decoration, a desirable feature that adds colour and warmth. The rich red glass contrasts beautifully with the mellow brass. It is complete with an etched glass shade with softly shaped rim and clear chimney, giving an elegant overall profile. Victorian oil lamps such as this were used before electricity as a primary source of lighting, typically placed on tables or sideboards. Better examples were chosen not only for function but also for their decorative appeal within the home. Today this antique oil lamp works equally well as a statement decorative piece or as functional lighting, bringing character to both traditional and contemporary interiors. Condition report: In very good antique condition with light age related wear. The brass has a pleasing patina. The glass font and shade are in good order with no obvious damage. A complete and well presented...
