Description

A superb late 19th century Victorian large pedestal desk in oak, very well made and of the finest quality, displaying exceptional craftsmanship throughout. The desk features a beautiful green leather writing surface with a generous working area and a large, comfortable knee hole. It offers eight drawers in total, arranged as four on either side, all retaining their original brass swan neck handles, adding to its authenticity and period character. The desk is supported on two pedestals with a solid plinth base, giving it excellent stability and presence. The oak displays a gorgeous grain and rich colour throughout, enhancing its overall appeal. With its solid construction and practical design, this is a very desirable example in great condition, making it a perfect addition to any home or office. It truly has to be seen in person to be fully appreciated.
