Description

Excellent French Swinging Cherub mantle clock dating to the late 1800's. Very rare to find these clock that aren't in white alabaster, and also stamped with the Farcot makers mark. The case in gilt metal, probably restored, all in very good order. Dial in good condition with Roman numerals and skeletonised centre showing the movement. The pendulum is a cherub that swings back and forth on a swing, just delightful. 8 day time only movement fully cleaned, serviced and keeping excellent time. 12 month guarantee (terms apply). Beautiful small size, measuring approx 12 inches in height (30.5cm) and 11 1/2 inches wide (29cm). The davenport in the photos is not part of the sale and showed here to illustrate the clocks diminutive size and proportions.
