Description

A beautifully refined pair of vintage aquamarine and diamond drop earrings, dating to the 1950s and crafted in 18ct gold. Each earring is formed with a delicate sense of balance and movement, featuring a softly coloured pear cut aquamarine suspended beneath a slender gold bar. A small old cut diamond sits between, adding a gentle sparkle that catches the light with every movement. The aquamarines display a clear, tranquil sky-blue hue, perfectly complemented by the warmth of the gold and the fine millegrain detailing to the settings. Light, elegant and wonderfully feminine, these earrings fall gracefully from the ear and are as suited to daytime wear as they are to evening occasions.
