Description

Regency Brass Bound Camphor Wood Trunk This elegant Regency brass bound camphor wood trunk is a fine example of early 19th century craftsmanship, combining practicality with understated sophistication. Constructed from solid camphor wood, the trunk is strengthened with decorative brass bindings and corner mounts, designed to withstand the rigours of travel while enhancing its visual appeal. Opening the lid reveals a thoughtfully fitted interior, complete with an adjustable mirror—an especially desirable feature that reflects the trunk's dual purpose as both a travel chest and personal dressing companion. Such mirrors were often included for convenience during long journeys, adding a refined and practical element to the piece. The camphor wood interior emits a distinctive, fresh aroma when opened, a natural quality that has long been valued for its ability to repel insects and protect clothing and textiles. This made camphor trunks particularly popular for storing garments during travel or in varying climates. With its warm tone, rich grain, and robust brass detailing, this Regency trunk is not only a functional storage solution but also a highly decorative piece. It works...
