Description

A refined and elegant pair of Georgian mahogany demi-lune console tables, dating from the late 18th to early 19th century. Crafted in beautifully figured solid mahogany, each table displays a rich, warm patina that has developed wonderfully over time. The classic demi-lune (half-moon) form offers graceful, sweeping lines, with finely shaped tops above simple friezes and supported by slender, tapering legs. The restrained design reflects the timeless sophistication of the Georgian period, allowing the quality of the timber and craftsmanship to take centre stage. Perfectly proportioned, these tables are designed to sit against a wall or can be placed together to form a full circular table, offering versatility in both traditional and contemporary interiors. Ideal for use as console tables in a hallway, living room, or dining space. Presented in very good antique condition, with minor age-related wear consistent with careful use. A highly decorative and practical pair, increasingly sought after and rarely found as a true matching set.
