Description

A striking Dutch glass display cabinet from circa 1830, showcasing the refined craftsmanship of the period. A late 18th early 19th Century Walnut Dutch Marquetry Display Cabinet on Chest. Arch-topped and decorated with floral and arabesque Dutch marquetry patterns, this piece features four drawers, all inlaid with marquetry, two glazed doors, and a bombe-style chest base. This elegant piece features beautiful detailed marquetry. Marquetry with a glazed front and sturdy wooden frame, perfect for showcasing fine collections or serving as a statement furniture piece. The cabinet comes with its working key. The glass is original apart from the two shelves which are more recent additions. The timeless design complements both traditional and contemporary interiors, offering practical storage with authentic period character. An exceptional addition to any home with an appreciation for antique furniture and historical design.
