Description

A striking vintage ruby and pearl cluster ring, fully hallmarked for London 1962. This wonderfully sculptural design captures the bold aesthetic of the 1960s, with textured gold forming elegant ribbon-like swirls around a central pearl. The pearl is encircled by twelve vibrant rubies, their rich red tones providing a beautiful contrast against the warm gold. The textured finish gives the ring depth and character, catching the light from every angle, while the raised setting ensures it sits proudly on the finger. It is a confident and stylish piece—equally suited as a statement ring or an unusual alternative to a traditional cluster. A superb example of mid-century design, combining strong form with timeless materials.
