Description

A striking and highly refined Victorian brooch, centred around an exceptional oval-cut topaz of rich, glowing amber tones. The stone displays remarkable depth and fire, catching the light beautifully and giving the piece a warm, radiant presence. The topaz is framed by an intricately worked gold surround, showcasing elegant scrollwork and fine detailing typical of the Victorian period. The craftsmanship is both delicate and confident, creating a perfect balance between boldness and sophistication. This is a particularly eye-catching and uncommon example, offering both decorative impact and period authenticity. It wears superbly as a statement piece, equally suited to formal occasions or as a standout addition to a curated antique jewellery collection. A fine and distinctive brooch of real character - desirable for collectors and effortlessly elegant when worn.
