Description

Unusual late 18th century oak side table with a locking central drawer and two others, circa 1780. This side table is a very useful size and certainly an interesting little piece of 18th century furniture. The condition is good and has the working lock and key to the central drawer. There is a faded mark to the table top, but I have left this as it is under many decades of beeswax and would be a shame to strip away to re finish...in my opinion, the mark does not warrant a strip as in reality it isn't very noticeable, but under the very bright lights of the studio, it looks more visible! Measuring: 18 3/4 inches or 47.5 cm high 21 1/2 inches or 54.5 cm wide 14 3/4 inches or 37.5 cm deep
