Description

A truly exquisite Edwardian diamond cluster ring, dating to circa 1910 and beautifully crafted in rich 18ct yellow gold with a platinum-topped setting. This enchanting antique ring is centred by a sparkling old cut diamond in a raised claw setting, surrounded by a halo of nine further old cut diamonds, creating a classic floral cluster of exceptional elegance. The diamonds are beautifully lively stones, displaying the distinctive fire, charm and scintillation so admired in old cut diamonds. The elevated platinum gallery sits gracefully above a beautifully formed yellow gold corbeille, while elegant split shoulders add refinement and unmistakable period character. This is a timeless and deeply romantic piece — perfect as a very special engagement ring, anniversary gift, or treasured heirloom to be passed down through generations.
