Description

A rare and highly characterful antique commode chair, crafted from solid oak with a warm, rich patina developed over time. This piece combines practicality with traditional craftsmanship, featuring elegant turned front legs, shaped armrests, and a gently curved backrest. The hinged seat reveals the original ceramic chamber pot, making this a complete and authentic example. The seat panel is beautifully decorated with an inlaid or printed motif, adding a subtle decorative element to an otherwise functional form. A striking conversation piece, ideal for collectors or as a decorative accent in period or eclectic interiors. In very good antique condition. Age related wear, marks, and patina consistent with use. The ceramic pot is present and intact. Structurally solid and fully functional.
