Description

19th Century Large Scale Antique Oak Dining Table – Provenance We have two of these wonderful, large scale English antique Gothic oak dining tables available, very much in the style of Pugin and made for the Bodleian Library Oxford around 1870. They are in superb, very solid condition with fabulous refectory dining table bases that have shaped legs on long sledge feet with chamfered edges and connected by decorative arched supports and a central stretcher. They are a great size, the solid oak table tops being very deep, and with plenty of room at the ends for diners to sit too. Priced individually. A rare to find large scale English antique solid oak refectory dining table with excellent provenance and two available. Dimensions Height: 76cm (30.16") Width: 242cm (96.03") Depth: 106cm (42.06")
