Description

This is an antique Dragon motif fireplace set. An English, estate-made cast and wrought iron fire basket and andirons ensemble, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910. A striking and robust hearth set, rich in character with distinctive dragon detailing and traditional craftsmanship. Estate-made cast and wrought iron construction, well suited to regular fireside use. Displays a desirable aged patina with gently time-worn appearance. Generously sized cast iron fire basket with a bold hound tooth border. Fascinating wrought iron fire dogs with naïve dragon mask detail. The wide, bow form basket provides a well sized grate. Crafted for durability and long-lasting performance. Classic proportions with appealing period presence. Suitable for all fuel types including coal, kindling and logs. Dragon masks with serpentine form, the reverse adorned with spiral tail motifs. Fire dogs stand upon splayed front legs for stability. Two-tier rear support arms provide practical grate support. Ideal for period fireplaces or country house interiors, adding character and visual interest to the hearth. This is a charming Edwardian fireplace set with enduring decorative and functional appeal.
