Description

Technical Description An 18th-century composite wine glass dating to circa 1750. It features a drawn trumpet bowl transitioning into a multi-spiral air twist. The stem has an applied air beaded knob above a plain stem section, raised on a domed conical foot. Date & Origin England, c1750. Period of King George II. Condition Excellent. No chips, cracks or restoration. Dimensions Height: 17cm Rim diameter: 7.1cm Foot diameter: 7.3cm Weight: 206 grams Historical Context Composite stems in 18th century glass are stems made using a combination of different techniques or sections, such as air twist, plain glass, and applied knobs. Most commonly found around 1740–1760, they reflect a period of experimentation and growing skill in glassmaking, offering both structural strength and decorative variety compared to single-technique stems.
