Description

Description An impressive 'Newcastle' light baluster wine goblet produced in England circa 1755. It has an ever-so-slightly flared, pointed, round funnel bowl with a heraldic William of Orange armorial engraving. The stem exhibits a complex multi-knop stem consisting of a rare hollow conjoined angular and true shoulder knops, a large air-beaded inverted baluster knop, and an adjoining basal knop. Conical foot with a rough snapped pontil. The Engraving: An exceedingly fine wheel engraving of the coat of arms of William V, Prince of Orange-Nassau (1748–1806). It is a complex shield representing his vast hereditary territories; the four main quarters feature Nassau, Moers, Sarrewerden, and Saarbrücken, with a central escutcheon (small shield) of Lahr and Mahlberg. Topped with a crown symbolising his position as Stadtholder (Provincial Governor). The shield is housed within the garter circlet of The Most Noble Order of the Garter, an order of chivalry founded by King Edward III in 1348, with their engraved motto: "HONI SOIT QUI MAL Y PENSE" translated: "evil be to him who thinks of evil". Below, contained within a banner, is the motto "IE MAIN TIEN DRAI", translated "I shall ...
