Item Reference: SA1212550Date of manufacture: 1880

Description

Victorian lantern in copper with a green painted finish. This lantern was probably originally gas and has since been converted to electric. The door is still working and retains its original slide catch. The top has a pagoda-style roof with vents to allow hot air to escape. At present the cable exits from the top, although this could be altered to exit from the bottom if required. The lantern is earthed and ready to use. It comes with an Edison screw E 27 bulb holder and stands on a cast iron base designed to be bolted down outdoors. sku 3742
