Description

Spanish Gothic Cathedral Chest, Circa 1600, decorated with Gothic motifs and a central cross. Built from solid oak and still retaining its original panels, showcasing a beautiful aged patina. It shows reassuring signs of age and use, including old repairs, which add to its authenticity. The intricate carvings reflect the influence of the early European Gothic style, which was popular during the late medieval and Renaissance periods in Europe. This chest would have been used to store sacred religious objects within a church or cathedral setting. It originates from the Navarrese region of Spain, which adds to its historical significance. Navarre has experienced political and social upheaval due to conflicts and power struggles throughout the centuries. Measurements: 145cm W x 67.5cm D x 87cm H
