Description

A smaller size French Bureau Plat or writing table, dating to the 18th Century in typical neoclassical Louis XVI taste. With three drawers to the front with chequerboard parquetry inlay to the front and sides, and with ormolu mounts and sabots to the tapered legs. The rear has dummy drawers so can be used in the centre of the room if desired. To the top is what looks like the original leather now old and worn but with a lovely patina. There are the obvious old signs of wear ( mainly to the underside) typical of a desk of this age but overall in excellent condition , and colour .
