Description

A large Chinese porcelain basin, c. 1760, Qianlong Period. Beautifully hand painted in underglaze blue, to the interior, with an extensive river landscape of figures on a bridge, observing boats, before pavilions on the islands. All beneath a broad complex border. The everted rim, painted with a cell diaper motif, whilst large sprays of flowers adorn the exterior. Diameter – 32.5 cm, 12 3/4". Height – 13 cm, 5 1/8". Condition – There is a faint hairline to the underside, which barely penetrates the body. It does not detract from the decorative quality of this large item. No restoration.
